Tip: Arriving by train and bus? No problem. Below is how it works best. All public transport tips were subjected to a practical test.

From the town hall square in Siegsdorf, the hike leads over the bridge of the main road and on to Wernleiten and up the Hochberg. An impressive view of the Chiemgau mountains awaits you there. It continues over the Hochberg to Daxerau, where from Seiboldsdorf the path along the Traun leads back to Siegsdorf.

The Hochberg is a great terrace with a view of the Bavarian mountains and Lake Chiemsee, and sunsets when the weather is nice are also very popular. The Alpengasthof Hochberg offers Bavarian delicacies and international dishes. Sufficient time should be planned for the tour and nice weather for the view on the Hochberg.

Without a car to the Siegsdorf town hall

How to get there : RB 53 from Traunstein train station to Ruhpolding

Exit : Siegsdorf stop

Way to the town hall : Leave the train station to the right and turn right again at Bahnhofstrasse. Cross the tracks, the town hall and the hiking signs are on the left.

Travel time: approx. 5 minutes by train + 2 minutes on foot

To the timetables

This topographic map depicts the Traundorf area in the Harz region of Germany. The Ilse river is a central feature, flowing from the north towards the south. The town of Traundorf is situated on the river's left bank, while Wernleiten is on the right. A prominent black line traces a hiking route that starts near Traundorf, follows the river, and then winds through the surrounding forested hills. A yellow line represents a road, likely the B 306, which runs north-south. The map is labeled with numerous villages and hamlets, including Axdorf, Wimpasing, Siegsdorf, and Wernleiten. It also shows the Ilse river, the Ilse valley, and the surrounding Harz mountains. A scale bar at the bottom indicates distances up to 10 km.
